

ASPEN Physician Community – Quarterly Key Publication in NCP

The Physician Engagement Committee (PEC) has partnered with Nutrition in Clinical Practice to publish thought-provoking and educational nutrition articles spearheaded by physician nutrition specialists. The articles will come in one of four forms:

- Pivotal Paper – This article will highlight a recently published (within 12 months) high-impact, practice-changing nutrition study. This article will provide an in-depth presentation of the study’s background/relevance, design, and impact. Optional practical recommendations may be also be included.
- Systematic/Narrative Review – This article will either be a formal systematic review or narrative review (with systematic query and article selection) on a focused nutrition topic.
- Clinical Controversies – This article focuses on a controversial nutrition-related topic, while providing sophisticated, evidence-based discussion of counterpoints by at least 2 physician nutrition specialists, each taking one of each opposing side.
- Clinical Dilemmas – This article focuses on a clinical problem for which there appears to be no clearly optimal method of management. The discussion should emphasize the nature of the dilemma and discuss the strengths and weaknesses of various alternatives available for management of the clinical problem, while providing research-based evidence to support the counterpoints.

Proposed article topics would need to be vetted prior to manuscript preparation.

If interested, please contact Pat Anthony at pata@nutritioncare.org.